WHITEWATER WILL CASE IS SETTLED

Whitewater, July 11.—The Catherine Cummings will was disposed of Wednesday at Elkhorn in Judge Belden's court. The case was an interesting one about a year ago. ## THE WISHING PLANE

Jack would have liked to have put on one of the suits of armor the children saw in the attic, but when the king put one of the big metal coats around Jack the youngster found that it reached from the floor almost to his shoulders. He knew that he wouldn't be able to move if he did have it fastened on him.

The king also showed them two or three of the saddles the knights used for you know they all rode horseback. Each one of the saddles was big enough to hold Jack and Jane and Jeanne all at once.

They were built of thick leather of many layers and fastened with huge brass rivets. The children thought that one of the saddles alone would be a load for the horse to carry.

When they had finished examining the armor, the king opened chest after chest containing the clothes worn by the kings and queens and other court folks from the days of the knights down to the present time.

The king told the children interesting stories about each one of the rulers and how the crown had been handed down from one to another until at last he had been called to the throne.

There was King Alexander, the Silver Knight. He called him. He wore a suit of armor plated with silver, which shone like a mirror in the sun. His hair, even when he was a young man, was almost white, and it resembled silver, too.

He ruled for many, many years. He was killed in a battle while leading his men against a force of outlaw knights who were trying to break into the monastery near his castle and murder the fathers there.

There was King Constantine, the next man to take the throne, and son of King Alexander. It was he who brought more land into the little kingdom when he waged war against the neighboring state to free the peasants of that state from the cruel king and his followers, who were forcing the people to pay them large sums of money, which were spent for the king's pleasure.

King Peter was next, but his reign was a short one. He sought to keep the people from holding meetings in their little villages to suggest changes in the government, and attempted to tax them heavily. He was murdered one night after drinking heavily with some of his followers.

They called the next king "Honest John." One of the first things he did as ruler was to turn back to his people the large sums of money King Peter had taken from them for his own pleasure. "Honest John" did other acts to make his people love him, and bring back their faith in the ruling family.

His eldest son, Henry, while still a boy in school, was kidnapped and held for a long time for ransom. The king's aides finally found out where the boy was being held and he was rescued. He later became king.

So it went on down the line until King Charles' father sat on the throne. The children knew King Charles' history from then on.

GAZETTE SERVICE.

Gazette service is becoming better appreciated by its big family of readers every day as they depend more and more upon the columns of this newspaper for the latest authentic news of the world. Readers realize that the Gazette will give the news of the day quicker than any newspaper which circulates in this section.
They know that it is accurate.

Thursday, for example, the president delivered his address on the peace treaty before the United States senate at 12:15 Washington time, which is 11:15 our time. At exactly 11:20, in our office, the Associated Press operator began taking the long speech over the wire, word for word.
It was edited, rushed to the linotype machines and appeared on the streets before four o'clock. This was done without curtailing any of the regular news which has made the Gazette
popular in the homes of its readers.

These living in surrounding communities who read the Gazette were able to read the president's message
before they went to bed last night.
Those who did not get the Gazette
had to wait until they received a morning paper or an evening paper,
which did not reach them until this morning.

This is one illustration of the service given by this newspaper. On the fourth of July, the Gazette published a light extra for the benefit of hundreds who were interested in the outcome of the heavy fighting. The edition did not bring profit, but it gave people of this community service. Seventeen minutes after the complete returns of the fight came over the leased Associated Press wire, the paper was on the street, and twenty minutes after, automobiles
were hurrying to neighboring towns
with bundles of extras.

We speak with pride of this service. We know it is appreciated because the circulation of the Gazette is steadily increasing. With the determination to publish all the news that is fit to print, to maintain our many features and to continue to give service to the community, we are sure that our readers will grow in numbers.

UNION HIGH SCHOOLS.

Considerable interest was manifested at the recent county school board convention over the discussion of rural union high schools. Many agreed that it is only a question of time when Rock county, to keep pace with some of the other progressive counties of the state, will have to broaden her rural school program.

It was pointed out that the great advantage of a union high school lay in the opportunity for children in the country districts to have the same educational advantages as the city
boys and girls and at the same time be near home. One of the present drawbacks for the children is that that cannot go so far from home as many are compelled to, to get a high school education.

Men and women who have made a thorough study of the proposition agree that union high schools are the best educational investments the farmer can make. They point out that the day of the "little red school house" has gone and that the children of the farm are demanding incomplete an education as their city brothers and sisters. The ambition of the present-day farm lad or lassie is to equal, if not excel, those who live in cities. It is proper that they should be given every opportunity and encouragement.

Not many years ago an old-time,
moss-back farmer, who lived who had been a drudge all his life because his vision was so dimmed that he could not see beyond the confines of his farm, made the assertion that he did not want any of his children to go beyond the country grade school because if they got too much education
they would be too "high and mighty" and would leave the farm. A few years later two sons and one daughter had left the old place and were working in a city.

It is reasonable to suppose that if
that farmer had given his children
every possible educational advantage while he had them on the farm; had let them see something besides the drudgery of farm life, as he led it,
they would have been content and stayed on the old place.

It has been proven that where children of the rural districts are given many of the advantages children of the cities have, they are more contented to remain at home.

Under the state aid schedule the maintenance of union high schools
involves but little expense.

WILSON'S PEACE ADDRESS.
President Wilson's address on the peace treaty and the league of nations, before the United States senate yesterday, was a masterpiece of freethy, eloquence which sounded well, but which did not impress one as being much of anything except a plea for internationalism. It lacked the true ring of Americanism.

Mr. Wilson did not deal specifically with any of the objectionable features of the treaty, being especially careful to refrain from mentioning the Shantung affair, which is considered one of the great objections to the pact.

Of course this is the preliminary skirmish and the president is too
wise to expose his whole bag of tricks at one time. It is probable that the address was a sort of try-out, affording Mr. Wilson an opportunity to practice upon his delivery before he took the stump to put the matter before the people. It must be conceded that, put across to an audience in his well-known appealing style of delivery, he will win friends for in a general way he points to the needs of a league of nations. He will be aided in his campaign because most everyone is of the opinion that a league of nations should be formed to bring about perpetual peace.

der the direction of Frederic J. Has-kin. Questions will be answered on

Q. Has the consumption of wine increased or decreased in the past 10 years?
A. E. F. F. The total amount of wine consumed in 1910 was 61,779,549 gallons.
This amounted to .67 gallons for each person in the United States. The total consumption for 1918 was 29,722,070 gallons which was only .38 gallons per individual, or less than one-half the per capita consumption for 1910.

Q. What are the national flowers of the principal countries of the world?
A. Some national flowers are as follows: Japan, chrysanthemum;
France, fleur de lys; Ireland, shamrock; Scotland, thistle; England, rose;
Germany, cornflower; Wales, leek;
Mexico, prickly pear; Spain, pomegranate.

Q. When will the 30th engineer
train be mustered out?
A. The war department informs us that this organization is en route to the United States, and it will be mustered out as soon as possible after its arrival.

Q. Can tattoo marks be removed from the skin?
A. It is said that tattoo marks may be removed by the application of a paste of salicylic acid and glycerine.
A compress should be placed over the paste and the whole held in place by sticking plaster. It should be removed after eight days, the dead skin rubbed off, and the application of the paste repeated. Three applications should remove the tattoo marks.

Q. What is the area of the Pacific ocean?
A. The Pacific ocean has an area of about 55,000,000 square miles, equal to the entire land surface of the globe.

Q. How old is the story "Little Red Riding Hood"?
A. Though an extremely old story,
it appears for the first time in its present form in Charles Perrault's "Contes du temps passe" in 1697. Perrault's claim is that Perrault wrote the tale from a nurse's story, but they became known in France through the tales of Straparola and Basile.

WISH I WAS A MILLIONAIRE.
Wish I was a millionaire many a time
I've said to Ownin' stocks an' bonds an' lands an'
gold an' endless credit.
Wish I was a millionaire! Then I chance to see one.
An' I change my wish again. I don't want to be one.

Got one cornered yesterday. Lord, but he was funny!
Acted like he was afraid I was after
money.
Talked a little 'bout the kids, romping
round us glad some.
Then he sighed an' looked away an'
said he wished he had some.

Showed him round the yard a bit,
with the roses growin' in Said he wished that now an' then he could work at home!
"Hired men do this for me, an' they do it badly!"
Seemed to me with all his wealth he was talking sadly.

Then I took him in the house to get a look at mother.
Bowed to her an' shook her hand like

GREAT SALT LAKE
One of America's most interesting wonders is the Great Salt Lake in Utah, the remnant of a prehistoric sea and one of the strongest natural brines in existence. Early explorers in America first heard of a "salt sea" from the Indians, but it is supposed that not until 1775 did a white man really reach the banks of Great Salt Lake.
Later Kit Carson and other noted pioneers visited the lake in their explorations of the West.

Great Salt Lake is today a popular resort. Even from the time of the Indians the water of the lake was regarded as beneficial for bathing. Time now numerous resorts and beaches
have sprung up and are thronged
every year with vacationists.

Because of the saltness of the lake,
swimming is quite different from that in other waters. The water is so dense and buoyant the body floats so high out of it that efforts to keep it sufficiently submerged for swimming

are not entirely successful. Floating is the popular pastime on Great Salt Lake, some bathers even managing to float in a sitting position.
The extremely briny character of the water and the deep salt deposits on the lake bottom are accounted for by the theory that the rivers that feed
the lake flow through soil and rock containing salt, which they have brought readily to the lake through the ages. The lake has no outlet so evaporation, which leaves the salt behind has constantly intensified its brininess.

Another phenomenon of Great Salt Lake is its tendency to vary in area. At times the lake has measured 30 miles in length, because of some mysterious shrinking to 50. On the whole it is thought the lake is slowly decreasing in size, though there is no danger of its 2,125 square miles of water surface
vanishing in the near future.

Due to its shallowness (average depth 15 feet), its whirlpools, and its great density there is little navigation on Great Salt Lake. Such boats as do carry passengers to points of interest on the islands or at opposite points of the shore are specially built with bottoms heavy enough to be stable in the buoyant water.

She leaves to mourn her loss four children: Mrs. Joseph Skelly, Mrs. Anna Bray, and Miss Katherine Bray, Nampa, Idaho, and Mrs. Joseph Connors of this city, two grandchildren, Harriette and Josephine Connors, a sister, Mrs. Catherine Dorsey, of this city.

Notice of the funeral will be given later.

London.—The "take-over" hostess is becoming a fixture in society. Gala events are no longer the domain of women who do not cancel their own functions when unable to attend, but instead engage a "take-over" hostess to do the honors.

AUSTRIA WILL BE MEMBER OF LEAGUE

(By Associated Press)
Paris, Wednesday, July 10.—Austria will be admitted to membership in the league of nations as soon as the allied and associated powers consider that she possesses a responsible government with both the will and power to fulfill its international obligations. Sympathy with the idea of the league of nations and an expression of willingness to be satisfied with taking the role of a participating member in that organization and on its protection, was expressed in the Austrian reply to the allied peace terms made public here today.

JANESVILLE GOLFERS MEET BELOIT TEAM

Fresh from their overwhelming victory over the Madison Country club team, local golfers entered into a match game with the Beloit Country club aggregation, on the Madison course, at the home of the Beloit team. It was held by local brasserie waiters that nothing less than a streak of unusually bad luck could result in their defeat. Lunch was served to members of both teams at noon and play began at 1:30 to continue throughout the afternoon. Dinner will be served at 6:30 this evening, the Gateway City team returning home later in the evening.

FOUNDATION FOR NEW HIGH SCHOOL MAY BE COMPLETED THIS YEAR

Whether or not the foundation for the new high school to be constructed on South Main street near Racine street bridge will be built this fall hinges upon the action of the city council at its regular meeting Monday night. Members of the board of education will meet with councilmen at that time to consider an appropriation sufficient to cover the cost of laying the foundation this year. The sum asked for will be less than $40,000. S. M. Smith, member of the school board, said today.

The decision to approach the council in regard to the matter was reached at a meeting of the school board with the architects held last night, which time plans for the new school were gone over and discussed at length.

Heart and Home Problems.

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have had my name in several exchange clubs and now I am receiving letters from different men who say they wish to marry me.

I have a gentleman friend to whom I have learned to love since I have known him better.

Recently he asked me to ride in his auto with him and he walked home with me one evening.

He is a very quiet young man and has no bad habits. My brother is acquainted with him. I think it would be unfair to him to correspond with any one else.

Would you answer the letters and tell the other men I can't correspond with them?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a young man friend who comes to see me about once a week. I like him very much and sometimes I think he cares for me, but he goes with other girls, too, and so I cannot tell.

I do not want to go with other young men because I like him best, but he is always telling me I should go with others, too. I am not a pretty girl and boys have never seemed to like me.

What can I do to make this young man give up his other girls and go with me only?

It is evident that the young man has no serious intentions. He is satisfied with his friendship and do not try to make him give up the other girls. You will be happier if you refuse to let yourself think of him as a dear and possible husband.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I went with a boy who was true to me. We went together for nearly three months. After we quit keeping company this boy tried to go with other girls, but not to amount to anything.

He isn't the same as he was. Now I have another friend who doesn't want me to go with or write to any other boys. I promised him and have been keeping my promise, but feel as though I would like to break the promise. But if I do I will lose my friend for good. But if I feel as if I could help the first boy a whole lot, I please let me have your advice.

A. K.
Do not give up your present friend for the young man whose conduct does not meet with your approval. You could help him very little, if any. There would be the danger, too, that you would lose your present friend.

Let the young man feel that he still has your friendship but do not go places with him unless he makes him self worthy of you and seeks you again.

last. "Do you know what you're asking me to do? I'm no molly-coddle, to sit around twiddling my thumbs or taking you to picnics and leaving you on the doorstep after, and trotting home like a little lamb. You're asking me to drag along this way for three or four years! It ain't right—now is it, I put it to you?"

Annie suddenly felt as if she were standing on a giant's feet. She was coming down, down, down, and could not stop herself. Down into drabness and loneliness again—nothing ahead but weariness and nothing to come.

She tried to force them back, but nervous sobs she couldn't control began to shake her. "All right—if you want to go for me a few years—let me go! I—I don't blame you, Bernie." She began pulling at the little diamond ring on her finger.

Bernard quickly into his arms and began to apologize. "There, there, Nanette, I didn't mean it. I'll wait. Of course I'll wait half of my life if it's necessary."

But Annie's eyes from his hold. Wiping her skirts and catching her breath she stood back and looked at him miserably, but with determination. "I'm not doing even in times of weakness."

"No, Bernie, I mean it. You're free. I won't have it any other way. Now she was putting Bernard on the defense, as women often have a way of doing even in times of weakness."

Bernie vowed. "Aw, now, Annie," he began. "No, Bernie, I mean it. You're free. I won't have it any other way. Now she was putting Bernard on the defense, as women often have a way of doing even in times of weakness."

"My God, Nan!" cried Bernie at last.

About the 6th Buzz, Tweedles the cup reporter of the Morning Glory, answered the city editor's summons.

"Tweedles! Next time you come to give me a chance to place a pink slip in your pay envelope," said the city editor. And Tweedles, properly admonished, hummed his head and snatched a can of ink and faked a few tears.

"Tweedles, there's an empty space on the second page like the one in your brain and I want the former filled up by your filing up the latter with a snappy bit of news—get me? Now scoot!" And Tweedles fled before the city editor could get his cigar back into his mouth.

It was just one hour and twenty-five minutes later that Tweedles returned; triumph written on every feature and the pad he held in his hand.

"AY, S. S. I've got it!" he yelled, slapping his hand down hard on a sharp bill.

"Out with it—quick! Hurry!" shouted the editor a trifle impatiently, it would seem.

WHITE SILK CREPE MAKES SMART NEW AFTERNOON FROCK

BY ELOISE.

While we have had nothing radically new this year in the matter of clothes, the beauty of the summer frocks displayed for wear at this mid-season more than compensates for all else indeed it may be observed that never before have women's clothes been so lovely, so graceful, so simple and so practical.

Women and those who make their apparel have learned much with the passing years, so much, in fact, that we may hope the day has forever gone by when we see a really ugly dress—at least in the eyes of those who are in touch with all the latest styles.

The woman who chooses white silk crepe this summer for her afternoon frock will know she is smartly dressed, for white is the season's favorite color and silk crepe is one of the most acceptable fabrics. This is a wonderful model built on simple lines.

The silk crepe is of an excellent heavy quality and the plain skirt is heavily basted and placed in the oven to bake. Baste frequently with the strained sauce.

The large picture hat worn with the frock is pink mesh and a wreath of crested colored roses encircles the crown. A fringe of the same gives a softening line about the face.

The size of a hat is determined by its inside width and length, divided by two.

A syndicate has petitioned the Swedish government for permission to make 5,000,000 gallons of alcohol from white moss, of which there are enormous quantities available.

Coal dust mixed with oil makes a new liquid fuel which is being exploited.

Concrete is replacing steel in the construction of water-lifting tanks with considerable success.

CORRECTLY-FASHIONED shoes for women for every occasion—from the daintiest of dancing pumps to the sturdiest of boots for everyday wear—all these are included in the showing of the season's latest styles in PATTERSON SHOES. Come in, if you please, and see for yourself the smartness that is in every line of these shoes, and master-workmanship that is in every inch of them. Try them on and appreciate the wealth of foot-comfort that is a paramount feature of every PATTERSON.

The PATTERSON SHOES are on display now at A. D. FOSTER & SONS, JANSVILLE, WIS.

HAVE YOU ANY ACQUIRED CHARACTERISTICS
Sometime ago I ran up against one interesting statement that when one acquired a characteristic by deliberate effort, this characteristic in the end would be stronger than those which one had by nature.

The authority for the statement said that your life is why women are more accurate than men in business. By nature they are inaccurate, but when they entered the business world they found they must overcome this weakness and they went about it so painstakingly and so thoroughly that they have actually made themselves more accurate than men who are accurate by nature.

At first, I did not believe this theory at all. But gradually I have come to give it more credence because I have seen illustrations of the strength of acquired qualities.

He used to say, "Never Do Today What You Can Put Off Till Tomorrow."

I have a friend who used to be a thing about the newspaper fraternity, to know that their natural instinct is to be easy-going to a fault. They never answer letters promptly; it is as much as they can do to get them to be business-like; and their favorite motto for everything except news-gathering is, "Never do today what you can put off until tomorrow."

This is, of course, a conception of the typical newspaper man, not of every individual. But he lifted this particular man. When he left the newspaper world and went into business, he gradually became a systematic, rapid-fire, clean-deck business man I ever met. He answers letters the day he gets them. He is punctilious about acknowledgment of every sort. In fact, he is so prompt, and goes to an extreme of promptness, and wears himself out unnecessarily in his effort to be ultra-prompt and business-like.

She found fault with Me For a Characteristic I Once Lacked
Again I had a great surprise, the other day when a new friend found fault with me because I never did anything in impulse. "You always stop to think before you say anything," she said, "Aren't you ever impulsive?" If that is true, it is certainly a marvelous example of the acquired characteristic. For impulse used to be my middle name. All through my childhood I was constantly getting into trouble because I spoke and acted on impulse. I had been trying to overcome this, but I hardly realized I had succeeded to such an extraordinary extent until I had this startling testimony.

One Makes Up And Goes Ahead
Doubtless you get accurate characteristics so strongly because the realization of an obstacle to overcome is the greatest stimulus one can have. I never in all my four years of college did so well as during the one term

A CHANCE TO LIVE

THE BREAK.
"Well—why can't you see your Aunt Margaret come and live with your family?" Bernie joked it out defiantly at last. "That's the solution. If they'd club together they could get along fine. She could pay board and the rent of a nice place, with something left over at that. And I'd be only too glad to peel off a couple of dollars a week to help out."

"Listen, Bernie," there was a sharp note to Annie's voice now. She had thought this all out before. "I want you to understand this once and for all, dear. My Aunt Maggie has helped me ever since I was born. She has been a slave to me forever. She has made her best choice. She has given up love, marriage, children, a home—everything that mother had—in order to have a little independence and order, quiet life of her own, and escape the wretched poverty and struggle my father had."

"I'm not going to ask her now to have neither the one thing nor the other. I want her to live in the old place, with all the sufferings and sacrifices of both!" Bernie went on after a pause. "Perhaps I ought to make you wait for me. But I simply can't get married at the expense of my people's happiness or my own peace."

"I will not let Jamie go into the factories when she's fourteen. She's going to a trade school as soon as she graduates from high school. She's made up my mind to that. She's going to learn millinery—and do for herself the things I never could do for myself. Jamie's not quite twelve, Bernie."

"Jamie is and I think she'll get through school next year. Then she's got to have two years in the trade school. And then—and then—we can get married."

Bernard's face went blank. He stared at Annie, saying nothing. Annie looked away and there was a moment of tenseness for both. Annie braced herself for the outburst she knew was coming.

"My God, Nan!" cried Bernie at last.

"There, there, Nanette, I didn't mean it. I'll wait. Of course I'll wait half of my life if it's necessary."

But Annie's eyes from his hold. Wiping her skirts and catching her breath she stood back and looked at him miserably, but with determination. "I'm not doing even in times of weakness."

"No, Bernie, I mean it. You're free. I won't have it any other way. Now she was putting Bernard on the defense, as women often have a way of doing even in times of weakness."

Bernie vowed. "Aw, now, Annie," he began. "No, Bernie, I mean it. You're free. I won't have it any other way. Now she was putting Bernard on the defense, as women often have a way of doing even in times of weakness."

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

THE FAT DEPOSITS in the body of a healthy individual serve several purposes. Fat is a slow heat conductor, hence keeps you warm. Fat is fine fuel, hence supplies the energy in emergencies when the body is in need of a soft supporting cushion retaining organs in their proper place. Fat under the skin smooths out wrinkles and converts coarse lines into curves and hence conceals beauty. Fat under the skin imparts to the complexion that essential yellowish, not sallow, tint that softens the pink or red imparted by the blood to a flesh color. If the subcutaneous fat is wasted the individual looks hectic.

Pat women as a rule have the finest complexions and the skinniest women, patronize the druggist. This is a fair enough division of labor. The opposite sex, when old enough to be well past the puppy love stage (which stage seems to be growing longer day by day), generate a glow, a blush to admit of moderate degrees of obesity in the credulous or trustworthy sex. In some countries frank obesity is a sine qua non, as the French would say, but here in America we men do not like it on the women.

percent excess weight when selecting mates.

My advice to the young man contemplating matrimony is to pick a plump one. Fat women are the racket. They require little medicine and less care. They wear well. What I mean is that you don't have to drag them around all the time to specialists, that is, if you treat them decently and fat wives are certainly easy to be good too. Then, too, they look good in old clothes, which is quite a saving these days. And, said plump somewhere within the ten percent limit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Drinking When You are Not Dry
How about drinking when you have no thirst for it? Some doctors advocate it, and some do not. Doesn't much water which is not drunk as no thirst is a sign of dehydration?

ANSWER—The average sedentary individual requires three to five pints of water daily,

Pieces of Eight

Being the authentic narrative of a treasure discovered in the Bahamas Islands in the Year 1903—now first given to the public.

By
RICHARD LE GALLIENNE.

The next moment there came, dashing in sight a sloop also under full canvas, and at its bow, a huge white man, with a leveled rifle that still smoked. At a glance, I knew him for Charlie Webster. He had been about to fire again, but, as the man dragged Calypso forward, he paused, calm as a rock, waiting, with his keen sportsman's eye on Tobias—con, of course, it was he.

"You—coward!" I heard his voice roar across the rapidly diminishing distance between the two boats, for the sloop was running with power as well as sails.

Meanwhile, the men had lashed Calypso to the mast, and even in my agony my eyes recorded the glory of her beauty as she stood proudly there—the great sails spread above her, and the sea for her background.

"Now, do her worst!" cried Tobias, his evil face white as wax in the sunlight.

"Fire, fire—don't be afraid," rang out Calypso's voice, like singing gold. At the same instant, as she called Tobias sprang toward her with raised revolver.

"Another word, and I fire," shouted the voice of the brute.

But the rifle that never missed its mark spoke again. Tobias' arm fell shattered, and he staggered away.

NATURE'S MIRROR

When a woman is well and healthy—there's a sparkle in her eyes, a rose tint in her cheeks, and she has rich red blood. There's elasticity in every movement and a spring in her step. Love comes to every woman who has bounding health—but when she is pallid, dull eyed, languid, she has no magnetism nor does she appeal to any man.

Such a change in feelings and looks!

After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of her sex—with eyes sunken, black circles and pale cheeks—such a woman is quickly restored to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce.

Changed, too, in looks, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the skin becomes clear, the eyes brighter, the cheeks plump. It is purely vegetable, contains no alcohol.

Druggists sell it in tablets or liquid. Send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y., 10c for trial package.

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With Othine—Double Strength.

This preparation for the removal of freckles is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold under guarantee to refund the money, if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few coppers will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

When they had gone a mile or two from the house, he had had the gas taken from her mouth, and, on her promise not to attempt to escape (which was, of course, quite impossible) he had also had her unbound, so that her hurried journey through the woods was made as comfortable as possible.

They were making, she had gathered—and as we had surmised—for the northern shore, and, after about a three hours' march, she heard the sound of the sea. On the schooner she had found a cabin all nicely prepared for her—even dainty toilet necessities—and an excellent dinner was served, on some quite pretty china, to her alone. Poor Tobias had seemed bent on showing—as he had said to Tobias—that he was not the "carrion" we had thought him.

After dinner, Tobias had respectfully asked leave for a few words with her. He had apologized for his action, but explained that it was necessary, the only way he had left, he said, of protecting his own interests, and safeguarding a treasure which belonged to him and no one else, if it belonged to any living man. It had seemed to her that it was a monomania with him.

screaming. "Still" once more, Charlie Webster's gun spoke, and the staggering figure fell with a crash on the deck.

"Now, boys, ready," I heard Charlie's voice roar out again, as the sloop tore alongside the schooner—where the rest of the negro crew with raised arms had fallen on their knees, crying for mercy.

All this I saw from the water, as I swam wildly toward the two boats, which now had closed on each other, a mass of thundering canyons, and screaming and cursing men—and Calypso there, like a beautiful statue, still lashed to the mast, a proud smile on her lovely lips.

Another moment, and Charlie had sprung aboard, and, seizing a knife from one of the screaming negroes, he cut her free.

His deep calm voice came to me over the water.

"That's what I call courage," he said. "I could never have done it."

The "king" had been right. He knew his daughter.

By this I was nearing the boats, though as yet no one had seen me.

"Now, do her worst!" cried Tobias, his evil face white as wax in the sunlight.

TERRIBLE TESSIE

THE THOMPSONS HAVE A HARD TIME COVERING UP THAT AWKWARD REMARK OF TESSIE'S CONCERNING THE GUEST.

un we were pulled ashore.

As Calypso was folded in her father's arms, he turned to me:

"Didn't I tell you that I knew my daughter?" he said.

"And I told you something too, O king," I replied, "my eyes during at last to rest on Calypso with the love and pride of my heart."

"And where on earth have you been, young man?" he asked, laughing. "Did Tobias kidnap you too?"

It was very hard, as you will have seen, to astonish the "king."

But, though it was hard to astonish him, almost impossible to alarm him, his sense of wonder was quite another matter, and the boyish delight with which he listened to our several stories would have made it worth while to undergo tenfold the perils we had faced.

Our stories, said the "king," were quite in the manner of "The Arabian Nights," dovetailing one into the other.

"And now," he added, "we will begin with the 'Story of the Murdered Slave and the Stolen Lady.'"

Calypso told her story simply and in a few words. The first part of it, of which the poor murdered Samsou had been the eloquent witness, needed no further telling. He had done his brave best—poor fellow—but Tobias had had six men with him, and it was soon over. Her they had gagged and bound and carried in a sort of improvised sedan chair; Tobias had done the thing with a certain style—and she had to admit—with absolute courtesy.

When they had gone a mile or two from the house, he had had the gas taken from her mouth, and, on her promise not to attempt to escape (which was, of course, quite impossible) he had also had her unbound, so that her hurried journey through the woods was made as comfortable as possible.

Dinner Stories

The young man brought some verses to his father. "Father, I have written poems." "What! Let me see them instantly." The father read them over carefully, the tears slowly

When company came unexpectedly, a South Side matron found herself in something of a quandary to prepare sufficient food for the extra plates at the dinner table. She managed to assemble enough by using a little of this and a little of that, and things would have passed off beautifully, but for Elizabeth, aged five. All through the meal Elizabeth carefully watched each person at the table.

TO THE PEOPLE OF JANESVILLE

A sixty penny spike can be driven into seasoned oak with a tack hammer. Insidious little hammers of prejudice, jealousy, ignorance and gossip are industriously knocking a way at your credulity, driving in deep the spike of false conviction. Do you ever stop to question the motives of the person who with cleverly acted disinterestedness indirectly volunteers information concerning matters of which he knows nothing but the rudiments? Could "he have an axe to grind?" Insinuation is more effective than accusation and offers no liability.

It is with the definite aim of putting you right on certain much twisted facts concerning the homes now being built in the northern part of the city--that this page is taken.

All Materials For These Houses Are Purchased in Janesville From Your Own Dealers. Any of the following will be pleased to answer your questions concerning the quality of commodities and workmanship entering into their contracts with us:

Fifield Lumber Co.
Chas. Snyder Plumbing Co.
Janesville Brick Works.

Sheldon Hardware Co.
John Keating
V. F. Moore & Co.

We challenge Rock County to produce better carpenters, laborers and finishers than those that we employ.

A Word About Prices:----

Your most prominent citizens, industrial leaders, and commercial associations have published pages urging you to buy and build now—that prices would continue to advance. We have sixteen houses and bungalows built on Sherman Ave. The select oak with which they are floored cost $70 per thousand feet. Oak flooring is now worth $108 per thousand feet and delivery at that price is almost impossible to get. The Prices of the Homes on Sherman Ave. are Based Upon Their Actual Cost and Not Upon the Present Cost of Materials. At prices ranging from $4700 to $5200 we offer a number of different models that represent the highest type of home construction, and embody every modern comfort and convenience. These prices include the lots, sidewalks, all painting and interior decoration, artistic solid brass electric fixtures, with flush switches, floor lamp plug and electric iron plug.

All homes have tile floor bath rooms, kitchen cabinets and high ceilinged basements under whole house. Bungalows have rug texture brick fire places and built in bookcases with mantle.

We shall be pleased to make appointments to go further into details with you at any time including Saturdays, Sundays and Holidays, and make but one request THAT YOU LET US ACQUAINT YOU WITH THE ACTUAL FACTS CONCERNING THE NEW HOMES IN
